Any person who loves another person,
Wherever in the world, is with us in this room—
Even though there are battlefields.
—Kenneth Patchen

“Peace poetry is larger than a moral injunction against war; it is an articulation of the expanse, the horizon where we might come together. To adapt a line by the Sufi poet Rumi: beyond the realm of good and evil, there is a field.”
—from the Introduction by Philip Metres
